Thouvenin rechtsanwälte is a mid-sized business law firm practising since 25 years in Zurich, Switzerland and has established itself as a competent and reliable partner both nationally and internationally.

Its growing national and international litigation and arbitration practice is chaired by Hansjörg Stutzer, Daniel Stoll and Thomas Rihm and includes, in particular, arbitration of international commercial transactions, sports-related arbitration as well as litigation in the banking sector. Thouvenin rechtsanwälte represents both domestic and multinational enterprises in a variety of high profile commercial litigation and arbitration cases across various industrial sectors and under all relevant arbitration rules.

The firm's high standing IT and telecoms practice and its profound industry experience has won many awards in the past and is chaired by David Känzig and Hansjörg Stutzer and attracts clients around the globe seeking assistance in regulatory as well as transactional matters. Thouvenin rechtsanwälte has a vast experience in regulatory access proceedings against the incumbent operator Swissom as well as in transactions involving technology companies.

Thouvenin rechtsanwälte's mergers and acquisitions department is highly regarded by its peers and it is not uncommon to see the firm acting for the most prestigious clients despite its modest size. David Känzig, Thomas Rihm and Thomas Loher are responsible for the firm's mergers and acquisition practice. The firm is often retained by international law firms to cover the Swiss-related legal aspects of international transactions. Its industry experience ranges from the traditional manufacturing to the high-tech and services industries.
